

APPLY FOR A TRAVEL GRANT to participate in the

ANZIC Marine Geoscience Masterclass: Southeast Queensland 15-25 January, 2024

DEADLINE 27 OCTOBER 2023

The Australia and New Zealand International Ocean Discovery Program Consortium (ANZIC) is organising a Marine Geoscience Masterclass. The European Consortium for Ocean Research Drilling (ECORD) is offering a number of travel grants to support your participation in the Masterclass. <https://iodp.org.au/anzic-marine-geoscience-masterclass/>

Applicants should be enrolled in a University as Master or PhD students at an institution within an ECORD member country.

The deadline to apply for an ECORD Travel Grant is 20 October 2023.

Please email the following documents to the ESSAC Office (essac@ogs.it):

- The application form
- a letter of motivation (1 page maximum), highlighting:
 - how your interests and expertise connect to marine geoscience
 - how you plan to use the skills learned in this course to help your current or future research, or career choice. Please comment on what aspects of the course interest you the most.
- letter of support from your supervisor or a course coordinator

Please register at the ANZIC Website as well.

Eligibility

This course is most suitable for second- and third-year undergraduates, but applications from undergraduate, graduate, or PhD students will also be accepted for consideration. The course aims to be extremely rewarding and to significantly boost and broaden your knowledge, skills and national and international networks. Please note that this course is not limited to the geoscience majors, and we welcome applications from students with a diversity of interests and from a range of disciplines. We are looking for students that are willing to embrace the collaborative, collegiate and constructive ethos of the IODP program. We are also looking to promote diversity within the marine geosciences, therefore applications from women and minority groups are highly encouraged. You must be a student in an ECORD member country.

The Travel Grant will be 3000 € which will cover the registration fee (2200 AU$) and contribute to the travel costs.
